The building will be brick veneered. The ground addition will be finished for a store and is already rented. The second floor will be finished into two five room apartments. Fred Sargent is the builder in charge.

Present and Future of Butterfield & Co.

The Stanstead Journal says of the Three Villages' largest industry:

"There has been a reorganization at Butterfield & Co.'s recently. H. E. Paine has been advanced from works manager to general manager of the business here; Fred S. Laythe is secretary-treasurer; Lawrence H. Laythe, sales and office manager; George M. Weston, superintendent. Harold Gilmore, general foreman of the tap and die department; Mr. Eaton, foreman of the twist drill department; Henry Lehrman, foreman of the cutter department; Raymond E. Gifford, general foreman of the American shops; Fred Ritchie, foreman of the wood-working department. The former dual management has been superseded by one head. This plant has a great future, and as soon as prices of building materials warrant, the much-needed Vermont plant will be built, that is, a building of up-to-date mill construction, about 174 feet by 68 feet, three floors and basement, and another 145 feet by 54 feet, one floor and basement, doubling the capacity of the present plant, employees and payroll. Every effort possible is being exercised to make the workmen comfortable, and every feature of the organization the most effective. The ideals hinted at are more than fruits of the head, they are of the heart, that the highest type of team work and cooperation may obtain, and this should be a challenge to the loyalty and good will of the citizenship of the community."

HERE YOU HAVE IT

One of the finest washing machines ever operated in a home.

"The Happy Day Electric"

is well named for it takes the "cuss" out of washing day. So simple to operate, a child can handle it—all of the gears out of the way—a perfect working motor, controlled by levers, so simple as to be almost fool-proof. The swinging wringer and combination stand reduces the handling of clothes to a minimum. Special descriptive catalog and prices sent on request.

We also have hand and water-power machines, prices ranging from $14.00 up.
